After the report of the Raum investigation closed in yesterday's STAR. Wm. T. Ford, assistant chief of record division of the pension office, the oldest employe in the Interior Department, of which the pension office is a part, testified relative to the charges against Engle. He said that they were contained in a state-ment which was prepared by Clerk Lineaweaver, but he (witness) did not remember whether it was sworn to or not. He made the statement of his own free will and accord, and it was not drawn from him by the commissioner. Mr. Engle had been discharged, but when he was reinstated witness told him that his discharge was the result of his own foolish actions and silly tongue. He told Commissioner Raum that the allegations in the statement were true. Engle had told him their substance. Commissioner Raum had not pumped the statement out of him. It was charged in the statement or affidavit that Engle had ruined a young girl in the office. Witness had told the commissioner her name, but declined to give it to the committee in public session. He asked for time, however, in which to consult counsel before saying whether he would give the name to the committee in secret. The matter, there-

ADMITTED THAT HE BORROWED MONEY. Mr. Enloe took up a charge made by three one-legged or one-armed soldiers that witness had referred disrespectfully to them. Witness denied the charge. He admitted borrowing money from pension office clerks, as he was in financial straits. He also had had financial sactions with Mr. Latourette, an outsider transactions with Mr. Lateurette, all but he did not pay him 10 per cent interest. He was at the present time in debt to Mr. Latou-rette, but was not paying him any interest on the money. He had never complained to the commissioner of Mr. Latourette's visit to the pension office. He acknowledged that he had borrowed money from a great many friends in

Mr. Enloe named several persons and asked witness if he had borrowed money from them. He admitted having done so, but when Mr. oe presented more names witness declined to say whether he borrowed from them or not. The practice in the office of borrowing money, se witness admitted, was pretty general. His prrowings had not been any more extensive, however, he said, than had that of other per sons. His borrowings had not been of extent as to embarrass any one, or such as would influence him (witness) for or against his cred-OBJECTS TO MAKING A STATEMENT.

Finally, after the committee had taken steps indicated its intention to compel the witness to answer Mr. Lind's questions, he admitted that he owed $80 to three subordinates in his division. The Gates Were Broken,

To the Editor of The Evening Star: On my way to market today about 11 o'clock I was very much startled by what might have been a very serious accident at the railroad crossing at H street northeast. The signal bell east gate did not come down. One engine passed and another was a short distance behind, when a man drove down it street and not seeing the gate down attempted to cross. One moment more and he would have been on the track with the engine upon him, but fortunately he was just a moment too late and his horse's head and the engine met at right augles. By an extracedinary effort he backed his frightened horse, which rushed down its street northeast in the direction of the Capitol at break-neck speed. I inquired of the conductor of the car the reason why the gates were not lowered and he said they were broken.

It is owing to just such causes as this that rang for the gates to fall, but for some reason the or no one is to blame. Narrow escapes at point are so frequent I am impelled to a note of warning before it is too late.

THE BASE BALL SEASON.

SIZING UP THE DIFFERENT TRANS-HOW THE LOCAL TEAM COMPARES IN FIELDING, BATTING AND IN THE BOX WITH OTHER TEAMS-POINTS OF WEAKNESS AND STRENGTH IN THE CLUBS.

The finest base ball organization that ever existed will today begin its history. The first existed will today begin its history. The first championship season of the year will open in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis. Owing to But on the whole Louisville is stronger than St. championship season of the year will open in nati, Louisville and St. Louis. Owing to the intelligent and impartial work of the committee on players the terms will be more evenly matched on the start than ever before. A greater inever in the cities of the league, for it will be the first time that the majority of them will see the picked players of the late association and league. Hitherto through ignorance each organization has been derided by the cities holding membership in the other. First as to the Washington team. In the calculations made elsewhere our team is not estimated very high. One "tout" says that it "will have a hard road to travel in spite of the infusion of league blood." Another says it is the field or at the bat." The review of the local team given in these columns on Saturday refutes these statements to a considerable extent. In the field we have Larkin, Danny Richardson, Hardie Richardson and Radford, and the records show that there is not a stronger infield in the country. Brooklyn's is the only infield that compares with it. New York's cannot begin to equal it. Chicago's is much inferior. Cleveland's and Philadelphia's approach it, but are no better. As to hard hitters, there are Donovan and Duffee above the 300 mark, and Milligan just on the mark. Then, too, there are Larkin, both the Richardsons and McGuire, who are hitters away above the average, leaving only hitters away above the average, leaving only Radford and Hoy who could in any way be termed weak at the bat. But they are run getters. Hoy made more runs than any member of the association last year, and whether he gets them by balls or hits and bases by skillful running he gets them, and that is what wins games. No, there is no weakness in the field o mation desired, even in this shape, because it would disgrace him and would be the talk of the office. Mr. Lind then asked him why he borrowed the money if he looked at it in that way. shown themselves to be good, though with the exception of Foreman they have not faced league batsmen. It would be foolish to say of any of them without trial that they are weak. They may make monkeys out of the league men. There is, therefore, no good reason for assigning a position in the rear to Washington's

> As regards Boston. It is generally looked upon as a pennant winner. It has the prestige of one season's championship and it has got good men from the association in Duffy and McCarthy. Its infield is a strong one, and in Clarkson, Stivetts and Nichols it is strong in the box, and with Ganzell and Bennett it is well fixed behind the bat. Whether Kelly will be a source of weakness or of strength remain to be seen. No one disputes his abilities.

Ward has a magnificent infield in Brouthers, himself, Joyce and Corcoran, and it is likely to be a stone wall for ground hits and liners. The agreeable work to do he had him (Mr. Bussey) to do it. A letter which witness sub-sequently received from Secretary Noble was to the effect that there were no charges against him affecting his characters. The strong with expectation of hard hitters. THE QUAYERS.

The same criticism applies to the Philadelphia team. Keefe may regain his old form and he may not. Certainly New York would not have allowed him to go if it had not been supposed his day was past. He certainly showed last year that his wrist had for the time lost its cunning. Thornton has pitched some remarkable bail, but no one can tell how long he will last. Carsey is promising, but that is about all. He needs a catcher who understands him to steady him. What he can do against league batsmen remains to be seen. His record last year was not a brilliant one, though it must be said that he gave Washington faithful and energetic work. In Connor, Hallman, Mulvey and Allen, a mixture of league and association men, there is a strong infield, but it has not played together a single season and their team work is a matter of the future. Thompson, Delehant, and Hamilton make a hard-hitting and well-fielding outfield, but in no way superior to Washington's. Clements and Cross are good actchers, but Washington would not give McGuire and Milligan for them.

Tiernan is quick. The others are slow. It is a fair-fielding outfield, but not brilliant. All three are good hitters and, with Ewing and Lyons, will do the bulk of the hitting. There is a letter now lying before me in which a chief accuses a clerk of being "cappable," and some of the readers of The Stark will no doubt remember the one who, when an appointment was made to meet him at 6:30 p.m., complained that it was too early in the morning to attend to anything, and who wanted to know what in something his correspondent meant by talking of a proximo.

No, a man may be perfectly honest in his intentions and yet do a grievous wrong; and to prevent this there should be some feature added to the system which would at least give the clerk a reasonable chance of getting his deserts. There should be a board of review, consisting of one clerk of each grade—these to be selected by the members of their respective grades—whose duty it should be to review the rating and rectify all errors before the averages are sent to the examinors.

opposition to the extension of the Washington AND GEORGETOWN BAILROAD TRACKS TO THE AQUEDUCT BRIDGE-FEARS THAT IT WILL BE AN ENTERING WEDGE TO CROSSING THE BRIDGE-ALL-NIGHT SERVICE.

The House, after THE STAR report closed resterday, continued its labors on District legslation until adjournment, which event was precipitated by a rather vigorous and unexpected opposition which arose to the bill exending the Washington and Georgetown road to the Aqueduct bridge. The resolution providing that no permits for welling houses in alleys should be issued was passed without debate, as was a resolution proiding that the subdivision of square 206, made by C. P. Patterson and recorded in book R.W., page 102, in the office of the surveyor, be confirmed so far as the said subdivision embraced any part of the original alleys in the square and the title of the persons claiming any part or parts of the original alleys under the owner of the original lots in said square at the time said subdivision was made be confirmed: Prorided. That the area dedicated to the public in the subdivision made by said Patterson is at least as great as that of the alleys in the said original division of said square into lots.

The bill providing for an inspector of plumbing and for prohibitory inspection was called up. The bill is a Senate measure and has been fully discussed. An amendment offered by Mr. Hemphill was agreed to, which provides that the inspection should be under the direction of the inspection should be under the direction of United States should get one-half of the fees and the District one-half.

of the general treasury, and yet the moment we are confronted with the question of the dis-position of these fees gentlemen insist that the rule shall not obtain. There is nothing narrule shall not obtain. There is nothing narrow in the suggestion of the gentleman from Indiana. The idea that we shall be compelled to pay one-half of the expenditure of this District, enormous as it is, upon the theory that we own one-half the property, although that one-half, when you come to investigate, consists largely in the streets of the city, is so absurd as to be repugnant to the common sense of any gentleman to whose attention it is brought."

Mr. Holman had inserted a list of thirtyeight employes of the health office and the salaries they received and then the amendment was adopted. The bill was then passed.

MARRIED WOMEN'S MONEY. A bill was then passed without discussion probank or other institution authorized by law to attach no importance to them.

And yet this one item outself. Canavan second and Burns and Cooney in the other infield positions. Canavan is a fair second baseman, but by no means equal to Pfeffer, either in the field or at the bat. The infield will play a snappy game, however, and will make batemen hustle to get balls past it. It may be that we should fix the limit of this may be that we should he this limit of this night service at 2 or 3 o'clock (the company begin regular trips at 5 o'clock). At all events, I do say that the company ought to be required to furnish reasonable transportation to people who require it between midnight and daylight. CROSSING THE BRIDGE.

The old discussion was they resumed as to prossing the bridge, and Mr. Heard said: "But the position of my friend from Georgia that we should refuse to compel these people or permit them, rather, to put in these four blocks for fear that at some time, at some point

So far as this Congress is con-cerned I know that it is so in this House and in the District congress. cerned I know that it is so in this House and in the District committee and that it was so in the committee on the District of Columbia in the Senate; the members have expressed them-selves as being in line with the District Com-missioners and the Secretary of War against permitting anybody to build a railroad across that bridge.

"But because we do not want to cross is no argument why we should not build the side of the con-

and the District one-half.

MR. ELOUNT'S REMARKS.

Mr. Blount, in speaking for the amendment, said: "We have already created here a corps of officers and employes who are paid for out the bridge as possible without interfering with the traffic across it. If they can get a charter hereafter from Congress to cross the bridge they can easily get a charter to extend the line. they can easily get a charter to extend the line up to the bridge. But there is a decided advantage in building the line up to the bridge now, if it is to be built at all."

Mr. Blount moved to indefinitely postpone the bill and there were 42 ayes and 14 noes. Mr. Hemphill made the point of no quorum, and in the midst of obtaining a quorum the House, on motion of Mr. Richardson, adjourned.

The flying embers from the fire ignited the roof of the residence of Henry Summers, some distance away, and it also was burned. The house was a handsome two-and-s-half-story stone building, and the loss on it is placed at about $18,000; partially insured. Several other small houses in the vicinity were also somewhat damaged.

The Penusylvania railroad warehouse and offices and ten freight cars at the George street station, New Brunswick, N. J., were burned on Sunday. The loss on the building is about $17,000.
